How precisely did Frank Magazine manage to get INSIDE THE MINDS of Trout Point Lodge owners Vaughn and Charles?

It would seem Frank Magazine, like New Orleans self-disturbing blogger Doug Handshoe, has found itself in the crosshairs of Trout Point Lodge owners Charles Leary and Vaughn Perret. Via email, Charles has chastised my goodness for using a photograph of the two of them to accompany my latest piece about their most recent court action involving Doug, against whom they've already won a $425,000 defamation decision. The most recent action revolves around copyright infringement accusations against Doug.

"You obviously thought this was the height of some humour: violating copyright in an article about an suing over violation of copyright," Charles writes. As someone, even here you give Frank Magazine too much credit, as my original simply inserted a photograph, illustrated to go with a news story. Just as for this issue, my editor required photographs/illustrations for Page 2, the use of which are luckily protected by our country's Copyright Act and its refinements for parody.

‘How precisely did Frank magazine get inside the minds?’ The real questions that need to be asked are what minds and who in their right mind would want to.
